

This is Eran Strong, a registered voter, which probably means little to the FCC being unelected officials.

I feel that this is another heavy handed approach from our government. What is being done is essentially taking away legitimate rights of the american people because some of them break laws. Punishing us all and making us subservient to even more corporations. Why? If I can't see something at a certain time and own a Tivo, why can't I record it to my closed box, and watch it at a later time? Why should I have to have permission from HBO to watch last nights boxing match this morning, when I pay for it anyways?

I can't help but feel that my government which was for the people and by the people is being coopted. So here we are, for Disney on the backs of the people.
